Founder's Message – Mara Makunura

Welcome to the Second Pride of Rushmoor Community Awards Ceremony.

It is a privilege and an honour to welcome you once again to celebrate the remarkable people, organisations, businesses, charities, and community groups that make Rushmoor such a vibrant and inspiring place to live, work and thrive.

When we launched the inaugural Pride of Rushmoor Community Awards in June 2025, our theme was centred around celebrating the past 50 years of Rushmoor. We recognised the key service providers who have been the backbone of our community, the services that have kept our residents connected and mobile, and the individuals, charities, businesses and community groups whose dedication has helped shape Rushmoor into what it is today.

Our community has experienced many changes, challenges, and successes over the decades. The fabric of Rushmoor is made up of many different colours, cultures, backgrounds, and experiences. These differences are not something to divide us, they are exactly what makes our community special and worthy of celebration. Through these awards, we have been able to shine a light on the incredible work taking place every day and ensure that our local unsung heroes receive the recognition they truly deserve.

As we continue to evolve, in February, we proudly launched our Business Resilience Initiative (BRI), bringing businesses together to share knowledge, ideas and practical strategies for navigating challenging times.

Tonight, we celebrate another group of outstanding individuals and organisations whose dedication strengthens our community. Whether you are a nominee, winner, volunteer, sponsor, supporter, or guest, you are part of a movement that believes in recognising excellence, promoting community spirit, and creating opportunities for others to thrive.

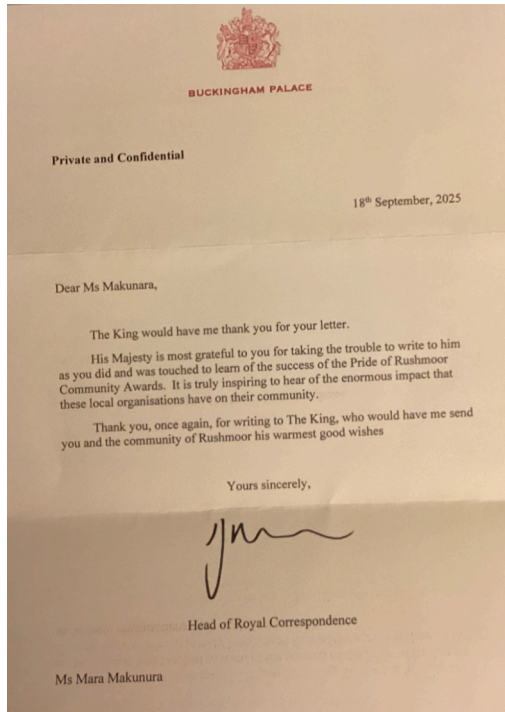

As we look to the future, my hope is that the Pride of Rushmoor Community Awards will continue to grow, inspire and unite our community for many years to come. This will allow us to continue writing our own story, the one that reflects the pride, resilience, diversity, and generosity that make Rushmoor extraordinary.

Thank you all for being part of this journey, and congratulations to all our nominees and award recipients.

Mara Makunura.

Letter from the King

Prior to our inaugural awards ceremony last year, His Majesty The King wanted to understand the work and activities of the Pride of Rushmoor Community Awards (PoRCA).

Following my correspondence with His Majesty, I am delighted to share a copy of His letter below. His gracious response is a tremendous honour and a wonderful testament to the positive impact and valuable work that PoRCA continues to deliver within our community.

Social Value Impact Statement

The Pride of Rushmoor Community Awards (PoRCA) is a volunteer-led initiative dedicated to celebrating, supporting and strengthening our community. Although only 18 months old, PoRCA has already made a positive impact across the business, charitable and community sectors by creating opportunities for recognition, collaboration and growth.

One of our greatest achievements has been bringing people together. Through our events and engagement activities, we have connected businesses that had never previously met despite operating within the same local area. These new relationships have led to collaborations, partnerships and opportunities that continue to benefit our local economy and wider community.

Since our last awards ceremony, we have seen the power of recognition in action. Several previous winners have secured vital funding to expand their community projects, while others have won contracts with larger organisations, enabling them to grow their businesses and increase their impact. Over the past year, we proudly launched our Business Resilience event, bringing businesses together to share ideas, knowledge and practical strategies for navigating challenging times. We also organised our first Community Charity Walk, raising valuable funds for the Veterans Hub in Aldershot while bringing together residents, businesses, charities and supporters around a shared cause.

The impact of PoRCA extends beyond awards and events. By helping local organisations connect, collaborate and learn from one another, we are contributing to a stronger business community, a more resilient voluntary sector and a greater sense of community pride.

One local business told us:

“PoRCA is encouraging higher standards amongst businesses. We have introduced new ways of working to improve our services because we want to be recognised alongside other local businesses. Our customers are benefiting directly as a result.”

This feedback reflects the wider influence of PoRCA and demonstrates how recognition can inspire continuous improvement and positive change.

We are grateful to our sponsors, supporters, schools, charities, businesses, and community organisations whose commitment has helped make this journey possible. Their support has enabled us to celebrate local achievements and create opportunities that make a real difference.

For many years, stories about our community have often been told by others. PoRCA was created to help tell our own story — a story of resilience, kindness, service, achievement, and community spirit. As we continue to grow, we remain committed to creating opportunities that connect people, celebrate excellence, and deliver lasting social value across Rushmoor and beyond.

Empowering The Next Generation – PoRCA Youth Ambassadors

Our Biggest Legacy Is the Future We Help Create

At Pride of Rushmoor Community Awards (PoRCA), we believe that recognising achievement is important, but inspiring the next generation is transformational.

That is why one of the most distinctive and celebrated features of our awards is the active involvement of young people from local schools, colleges, and community. Almost every award category is introduced by a young person, giving them the opportunity to step onto a professional stage, speak to a large audience, and play a meaningful role in one of the community's most prestigious events.

For many of these young people, PoRCA provides their first experience of presenting in front of a large crowd beyond their school or college environment. It is an opportunity to build confidence, develop communication and leadership skills, challenge themselves, and discover what they are capable of achieving.

We are incredibly proud to create pathways that encourage young people to flourish, grow, and become active contributors within our community. Every young person who participates in PoRCA is automatically invited to join our Youth Ambassadors Programme, providing further opportunities for personal development, community engagement, volunteering, and leadership.

Our commitment to young people extends beyond the awards stage. We collaborate with local schools and colleges to showcase talented young performers and entertainers, ensuring that young voices and talents are celebrated throughout the event.

*Building Confidence.
Creating Opportunities.
Inspiring Futures.*

We believe that when young people are given opportunities, they rise to the challenge and often exceed all expectations.

If your school, college, youth group, or community organisation would like to partner with PoRCA and become part of this exciting journey, we would be delighted to hear from you and welcome you on board.

Together, we can celebrate today's achievements while investing in tomorrow's leaders.

PoRCA In The Community

Remembrance Sunday Services

Pride of Rushmoor Community Awards (PoRCA) was honoured to take part in last year's Remembrance Service, joining the local community in paying tribute to those who have served and sacrificed for our country.

A particularly proud moment for PoRCA was seeing our Youth Ambassador, Sammy Austen-Jones, lay a wreath for the very first time at the Royal Garrison Church. Reflecting on the experience, Sammy shared that he was deeply moved by the occasion and honoured to be entrusted with such an important act of remembrance. Having never laid a wreath before, he described the experience as both humbling and memorable.

We were also proud to have PoRCA team members Waleed and Geoff represent the organisation by laying wreaths at the Cenotaph in Aldershot, helping to ensure that the contributions and sacrifices of past and present service personnel were respectfully remembered.

Taking part in these commemorations reflects PoRCA's commitment to community, respect, and remembrance. We are grateful to everyone involved in organising these meaningful services and proud to stand alongside our community in honouring those who gave so much.

PoRCA In The Community

Business Resilience – Connecting And Collaborating

This February, we launched our first Business Resilience event, and it delivered exactly what it was designed to do: bring businesses together to connect, collaborate, and think differently.

Our keynote speaker, Adrian Stratta, spoke candidly about resilience not the polished version, but the real version. The setbacks. The uncomfortable and painful moments that test you. And how those very moments can become the foundation of strength if you choose to learn from them.

Natalie Everard from Equal Potential CIC Potential challenged the room in the best way. She reminded us that resilience at work is not about forcing people to squeeze into rigid systems. It is about building environments where individuals can perform at their best as they are. That is not just inclusion; it is a smart business strategy.

We also heard from Nicolette from Farnborough Business Park about the advantages of their location and the tangible social value they contribute to the local community. Businesses do not operate in isolation, but they shape local economies and communities.

Business Resilience will now become an annual event, bringing local organisations together to connect, collaborate and grow.
